have executed 17 search warrants since January 1—more than any other patrol cops in the borough. "They are correct and meticulous in working cases and obtaining search warrants," McCarthy said. "It makes them better cops today, and will make them even better detectives and supervisors in the future."

Police Officers Paul Chatham and Cesar Capunay work in the 114th Precinct Community Affairs Unit. Phones ring non-stop in the office as the cops work with residents and businesses on a variety of projects, from policing street festivals and parades to resolving an unending flow of quality of life complaints. Chatham and Capunay are also responsible for maintaining records for numerous police department outreach programs, such as the VIN Etching, CAT and Commuter CAT, HEAT and TRIP programs, each offering a different method of vehicle theft prevention and driver safety. For information on the programs or to sign up, call the Community Affairs office at 718-626-9327.

Crime Prevention Officer Peter Lauinger is the man to contact for information and programs designed to protect life and property. Crime prevention surveys of homes or businesses, conducted by Lauinger or other 114th Precinct cops, will determine weak spots in safety measures. Lauinger and his colleagues will then provide suggestions on locks, window guards, alarms, gates and other devices designed to keep criminals at bay. Call Lauinger at 718-626-9324 to arrange for a survey.

The Crime Prevention Unit also offers a series of programs designed to maintain the safety of valuables, such as Operation ID, which allows a person to register items with police. Under the program, if the items are stolen and recovered they can be returned to the owner and used by prosecutors as trial evidence.

The 114th Precinct also includes Auxiliary Police Officers, civilian volunteers who don a uniform and hit the streets to act as the "eyes and ears" of the Police Department. Auxiliary cops are trained in crowd control and are permitted to detain suspects until NYPD officers arrive at the scene of a crime. They do not have the authority to make arrests or issue summonses, and they do not carry weapons.

Other volunteer programs include civilian volunteers who sign up to work with the 114th Precinct Civilian Observation Patrol (114th Civ-OP), a group of dedicated men and women who work closely with precinct officials on any number of crime prevention and quality of life programs, and the Astoria Anti-Crime Program, which offers training in programs "designed to allow you to protect yourself," according to Antonio Meloni, program founder.

For information on any of these programs, contact the 114th Precinct Community Affairs office.
