Great Low Holiday Fares From American Airlines

If you were planning to sit out the winter to see which way the winds are blowing—weather or otherwise—American Airlines wants you to know it has great fares to a number of very attractive destinations this season.

American, a founding member of the global oneworld® Alliance, is offering low fares for winter travel to many destinations throughout its worldwide route network, including popular spots in the United States, the Caribbean, Mexico, Latin America, Europe and Asia. If you want to soak up some sun, or perhaps some local culture, now is a good time to contact American.

Travel dates for American's low winter fares vary by destination and tickets must be purchased by Dec. 1, 2008. But no matter where you're headed, you'll be giving the cold shoulder to everything winter may throw your way this year. So come in out of the cold and contact American Airlines soon.

Here are the highlights of American's low, winter travel fares:

- Fares are available to select destinations in the continental United States, the Caribbean, Mexico, Latin America, Europe and Asia.
- Purchase tickets no later than Dec. 1, 2008; advance purchase is required.
- Travel dates vary by destination. For domestic destinations, travel early December 2008–late February 2009. For international destinations, travel early December 2008–early March or early April 2009.
- Other restrictions, including embargo dates, apply. For rules and restrictions, see the terms and conditions below, or visit American's Web site, AA.com.
